

Fellows of the American Association of Wine Economists

The fellows of the American Association of Wine Economists, i.e., the five editors of the Journal of Wine Economics, selected three new fellows for introduction at the annual meeting in Davis, California on June 26-27, 2010.

The following pioneers in the study of the economics of wine were inducted at a gala dinner at the Robert Mondavi Winery in the Napa Valley.

John Haeger, whose award winning book "North American Pinot Noir" has become the standard as a scholarly reference of its subject, was acknowledged for a lifetime of informed writing that is soundly grounded in careful scholarship that retains its accessibility to a broader audience.

CV

Robert Hodgson, who formerly taught statistics at Humboldt State University, and who is now proprietor of Field Brook Winery, was acknowledged for his path breaking scholarly work over a decade evaluating the reliability and validity of wine competitions.

CV

George Taber, the sole journalist present at the famous Judgment of Paris wine competition, was acknowledged for his three books on the wine world written over the last 6 years which, taken together, establish him as the preeminent American wine writer of his time.
